MANAGER'S COMMENT

Last month, the fund initiated a new position in DSM, a well-known Dutch specialty chemicals group. The company has undergone a complete transformation from its roots as a state-owned coal mining enterprise (DSM was founded in 1902 and stands for Dutch State Mines) into a specialty nutrition player. This transformation has materialized by way of disposal of the more cyclical chemical activities at strong valuations as well as value-creating acquisitions within the specialty ingredients industry. Today, DSM generates 70% of its profits in nutrition (both animal feed as well as human nutrition) with the remaining 30% originating from high-performance chemicals. Within Nutrition, DSM is the world's largest producer of vitamins, manufacturing virtually all fat-soluble and water-soluble vitamins. In addition, the group produces enzymes, fatty acids (omega-3), minerals and other ingredients that are vital to the diet of humans and animals alike. DSM stands out from peers by investing heavily in its future organic growth, which is exemplified by three major product launches (Clean Cow, Veramaris and Avansya) that are slated for the near future. These investments in future growth are a good example of excellent stewardship and capital allocation by management over the past years, in addition to other positive features such as a clean balance sheet, attractive valuation and good M&A optionality.

Risk Indicator :

1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Lower risk						Higher risk
Potentially lower rewards					Potentially higher rewards
Does not mean a risk-free investment

The value of an investment in a sub-fund increases or decreases over time. At the time of resale, the price of your shares may be less than the original price, representing a loss. If you invest in a sub-fund whose currency is different from your own, exchange rate fluctuations can also reduce your gains or increase your losses.

The above risk level is calculated on the basis of the sub-fund's volatility over the medium term (i.e. on the basis of actual changes in its value over the last five years or on a simulation, if the subfund was created within that period). The volatility of the sub-fund may increase or decrease over time, which may change its risk level.

The subfund's risk level reflects the following factor(s):

Equity investments have greater volatility and higher risk than investments in bonds and money market instruments. The risk level does not reflect the potential impact of unusual market conditions or unforeseen events that may increase risk or trigger other risks such as:

- Counterparty risk: the subfund can lose money as a result of the failure of a market player with which it does business.
- Credit risk: some financial securities may become worthless when the issuer of the bond is not able to repay its debt on maturity.
- Liquidity risk: some financial securities may be impossible to sell quickly at a given time or may have to be sold at a discount.
- Management risk: under abnormal market conditions, the usual management techniques may be ineffective or unfavourable.
- Operating risk: in any market, and especially in the emerging markets, the subfund may lose some or all of its money if there is a failure in the custody of assets or in case of fraud, corruption, political actions or any other adverse event.
