FUND DESCRIPTION

Patrimonium is a subfund of MerclIn II SICAV. The objective of the fund is to increase the value of your investment over the medium- to long term. Under normal market conditions, the fund primarily invests in a diversified portfolio of equities and bonds issued by companies from across the world, including from emerging market countries. The fund may invest directly in equities or bonds, or indirectly by investing in units of other investment funds or in certificates of deposit. In order to take advantage or hedge against market fluctuations, or for effective portfolio management, the sub-fund may use derivatives. The fund is actively managed without reference to any benchmark index. The manager selects flexibly between different investment classes, sectors and countries on the basis of macro-economic and financial criteria.

This fund is suitable for investors who understand the risks of the fund and who wish to invest for a minimum investment horizon of 3 to 5 years.

This investment policy is also mentioned in the key investor information of the fund.

MANAGER'S COMMENT

Emerging market debt is currently an interesting asset class where yields are higher than comparable European high yield corporate debt. This asset class underperformed significantly in 2021 due to the pandemic as well as default worries. Typically, defaults increase in the early stages of a crisis because restructuring allows issuers to postpone their debt repayments until their revenues have recovered. Today, the situation is quite different, revenues have already recovered substantially, and defaults are generally low in this stage of the cycle. Yields however have remain at above average levels, meaning that there is still a lot of value in this asset class.

Therefore, the Patrimonium fund initiated a small exposure to emerging market debt, thanks to investment in two specialized funds in this asset class. The two managers that were selected share the same investment philosophy as the Patrimonium fund: active management, fundamental analysis, a total return approach and great diversification amongst the investments.

Risk indicator: please consult the KIID and/or the Prospectus for more details.

The subfund's risk level reflects the following factor(s):

- The risk level does not reflect the potential impact of unusual market conditions or unforeseen events that may increase risk or trigger other risks such as:
- Counterparty risk: the subfund can lose money as a result of the failure of a market player with which it does business.
 - Credit risk: risk associated with bonds becoming worthless when the issuer of the bond is not able to repay its debt on maturity.
 - Liquidity risk: some financial securities may be impossible to sell quickly at a given time or may have to be sold at a discount.
 - Management risk: under abnormal market conditions, the usual management techniques may be ineffective or unfavourable.
 - Risk of derivatives: some derivatives may increase the volatility of the subfund or expose the subfund to losses that are higher than the price of the derivatives.
 - Operating risk: in any market, and especially in the emerging markets, the subfund may lose some or all of its money if there is a failure in the custody of assets or in case of fraud, corruption, political actions or any other adverse event.
